Les Linton: Les has been “settling in” with his new CNC machine. The 1st sign is for a laundry room. It says “Clean & Single Looking For A Good Mate.” Single stockings hang on the clothes pins until a suitable mate shows up. The other sign, “Looking For Answers” has a biblical symbol in the center.

Vic McDonald: Vic worked some walnut, aspen, oak and aromatic cedar into the 40 different pieces for this intarsia eagle. Closer inspection shows that he used material thickness to enhance shape.

Khaled Mohammad: Khaled's blocks are grooved to hold an iPad upright on a kitchen counter/wherever. His “paw plaques” may hang by someone's back door to keep a dog leash or other dog walking things handy. The “watermelon clock” gives hour of the day as one might expect but the “chalk board clock” lets you set the time marks anyway you want. It has an appeal especially if you live in the country.

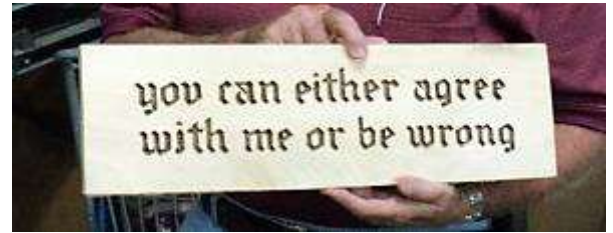

Del Luedtke: Del is a prolific and accomplished scroller. He's donating an assortment of scroll sawn ornaments, puzzles and plaques...and some of us were thinking he only did tiny, tiny deer.

Bill Frerking: There is a story behind every sign. The 1st sign is a cryptic “boss’s day” sign. The 2nd proclaims an event in Bill’s life. “I HAVE NEVER SHOT A HOLE-IN-ONE AND AWAIT THE DAY I CAN GIVE THIS SIGN TO SOMEONE ELSE” ...well, he did, and, he did.

Tom Robertson: In our June S & T, Tom showed how he sets up to cut the angle pieces he laminates to turn these 26” French Pastry Rolling Pins. These are made from laminations of rosebud, cherry, walnut and hickory. They are well turned, well finished and ready to make a baker proud.

Charles Blough: Charlie’s scroll sawn nativity scene ornaments were impressive and so were his small walnut cars and trucks. Every grandpa ought to have one in his pocket should a little grandson need some distraction.
