Peoria Area Woodworker's Club Newsletter 2016 - May

John talked about safety as the number one thing with any kind of woodworking and that it pertained to all the tools we use. He showed techniques for stack puzzles using tape to hold things together

He discussed the burning issues with cherry and maple as well as his use of the Loctite glue to be able to reposition patterns. His question and answer portion was great. Especially the answers!! It was a great job John. Thanks for doing it.

Show & Tell: As usual, we had a pretty nice show and tell. Below is at least one of what everyone brought in.

Tom Robertson: Tom brought in a cherry coffee table that he built after looking at several at Amish furniture stores. Now I know I normally only do one picture, but Tom came up with a unique mechanism that would allow the drawers to open from either side without falling out regardless of how you opened them. Well thought out Tom and a great job. Lacquer was the finish of choice

Tom Dourty: Tom brought in a small box that he fabricated using walnut with maple feet and accents on the top. Sort of “thinking outside the box” so to speak. Sorry Tom, I couldn’t help it. Tom finished the box with lacquer.

John Goodenough: John brought in two bowls and a cutting board in addition to doing his presentation. They were made using flat stock of maple, walnut and fruitwood and cut on the scroll saw with an angled blade. The cutting board is made of mahogany.

Great work John.

Rich Espe: The May mechanical masterpiece Rich brought in was a 1951 Ford pickup. Rich made the Ford using red oak and walnut. Many, many small pieces. Another nice piece Rich.

Denny Dukes: Denny brought in his version of the nutcracker soldier. He made this piece from pine and painted it with acrylics. A very well done and unique piece.

Mark Padesky: Mark, having seen some lures at a previous meeting and thinking like most of us that bigger is always better, brought in his version of a fishing lure. I will say, I would love to see the one you pull in with that lure.

Mark also brought in a few bottle stoppers he had turned using osage orange and cherry.

Mark Salrin: Mark brought in his first scroll saw piece of a cardinal and chickadee. Mark used maple and walnut and a poly finish to complete this piece. Something to be proud of Mark. Great job.

Larry Cogins: Larry brought in a segmented candy bowl the he made using maple and mahogany. Larry used Excel to help build the bowl.

Good work Larry.
